

Functionality, safety, emotions – new working environments

Ranging from High tables all the way to universally suited tables featuring a multitude of optional extras, the new table series Creva desk provides all the planning options expected from Kusch+Co products.

A line-up of tables with matching design aesthetics suited for office, lounge and meeting environments – that sums up the new table series Creva desk in a few words. Generously sized conference tables, compact variations as well as High tables designed for informal conversations – these are only a few of the possibilities with Kusch+Co's newest table series – slated to be launched in October 2020. Designed by the design team kaschkasch, Creva desk brims with the aesthetic charm of domestic furniture – oozing warmth and emotions – transporting it into working environments. During the creation of the Creva desk series, Kusch+Co put the focus on a variety of essential concepts, such as cleaning and disinfection, hygienic surfaces, fire prevention as well as environmental sustainability.

Kusch+Co's Creva desk is surplus to requirements: through its perfect balance between functionality and emotions, its wide range of available materials, and especially its timeless, minimalist design, the new table series is ideally suited to furnish conference rooms, informal meeting areas, training classrooms, large office spaces, restaurants, bars and hotels, not forgetting lobbies.

Special requirements to contract furniture

Dependent on the environment, contract furniture must offer so much more than excellent design quality and flexibility. In addition to the usual requirements, this type of furniture must meet very specific specifications. "This seating has to comply with very strict hygiene and fire safety regulations which usually present a serious challenge to architects and interior designers", comments Tommy Rube, Customer Service & Marketing Director, Kusch+Co.

Creva desk also excels in environmental sustainability. The series' environmental product declaration confirms that "all wooden materials are sourced from legally and sustainably managed forest" and that the series is recyclable up to 99 %.

New culture of interior design – special design features

Creva desk is an exceptional table series, transposing the aesthetic charm of domestic furniture into working environments. The slender appearance is characterised by round shapes, harmonious proportions and clear-cut edges, complemented by the warm aesthetics of the natural material wood. The sophisticated construction provides an extremely high comfort level. The rail-free subframe as well as the large table top overstand offer plenty of room. The steel leg mountings with aluminium supports as well as the steel reinforcing bars provide the best possible stability. The central joint in the middle of the table top can be used for freely movable power and data modules, view protection panels and trays. Whether individual workstations, workbenches, conference configurations or High tables – Creva desk opens up a wide spectrum of interior design possibilities, giving plenty of scope for optimum solutions.

Though the euphonic name Creva is an artificial name for marketing purposes, the name holds a clear reference to the English word "crevasse", a synonym for glacier. And the central "crevasse", serving as joint in the middle of the table top, is a seminal constructional and design feature.

The Creva desk table series is an integral part of the comprehensive Creva product family. With the series Creva soft and Creva stool, this product family also comprises soft seating and stools. Kusch+Co will continue to expand the product family in the future. Creva desk is the latest addition, making it possible to realise a plethora of interior design concepts.
